

SUPERNEUTRAL

Investigator,

You don't know me, but my name is Ed Barrett and I need your help. Anthony Rapinoe gave me your contact information. He said you were helping Rosemary Kent search for her kids, which is why I'm reaching out to you. I'm one of the hosts of a show called SuperNeutral. We cover paranormal stories, folklore, stuff like that. My co-host James Durant and I came to Burkittsville with our new crewmembers, Emma Parker and Ray Keel, to cover the story of the Blair Witch. We were trying to uncover the real story of what happened to the Kents. Whatever it is, I'm afraid it could be happening to my crew too.

I'd been at the motel setting up a temporary headquarters for our production while everyone else went into the Black Hills Forest to scout recording locations. It was late by the time we got into town, and I told them to just wait until tomorrow. James swore it would just be a quick trip to get the lay of the land, but they haven't come back. It's been too long now. It's not like James to mess up like this. He's always so prepared. It seems like it started this way with the Kents too; events that seem like innocent mistakes are actually something much bigger.

I tried asking the local sheriff for help, but I got nothing but bad vibes off that guy. That was even before he followed me into the museum and kicked me out just for trying to get assistance from Anthony. Then when I got back to our motel, there was this creepy black envelope waiting for me, a "welcome package," I guess. While it doesn't seem like most people in town are too happy to see me and my crew, the list of potential suspects who left that is pretty slim in my opinion.

James and I have been managing to communicate through walkies and phones, and I spent hours yesterday trying everything I could think of to help navigate them all out of the woods. The landmarks they described to me as they hiked didn't match what I was seeing on any map. Some locals helped give me advice on the layout, but I still can't figure out where they are. James insists the team just got turned around somehow, but I know what's really going on. And if you were involved with what happened to Rosemary, I think you do too. I've sent you what I've managed to work out so far, and I think something's there, but I'm just not sure what.

We need to work fast. Help me find something to tell James. Whatever's going on, I don't think the regular rules of navigation apply here. A cardinal direction won't work. We'll need to find something a little more esoteric. If you can work out a better set of directions to give James, send it to me on SuperNeutralPodcast.com. I created a folder there, which has some things that will hopefully prove useful, and a chat box so you can reach me directly. The password is CHUPACABRA.

I'm going to keep working, but we need to move fast. If we work together, we can get them out of there.

Ed

