

SUPERNEUTRAL

Investigator,

There was no one there. The camp at The Trench was completely destroyed. A crime scene. Blood everywhere. And something worse. At first I tried to convince myself it wasn't their camp, but whose else could it be? Something horrible happened there. An attack, or a fight. But there was moss growing over the remains of the fire already. The tents bleached by the sun. Like the van, somehow. I'm not sure how it happened, or what even happened. I don't know if anybody made it out. I looked everywhere, but there were no trails off into the woods or anything that could have told me what happened or where everyone went. All the clues just stop here.

What I've sent you is everything I managed to salvage from the camp. Some papers and, well, a bone. I found everything piled up in the middle of the camp, between two rock cairns. I looked through some of them myself, recognized James's handwriting. Even Emma's and Ray's. The bone was wrapped up in one of the papers. I know it all means something, but I just can't bring myself to look at it anymore. I need your help with this, now more than ever.

The one thing I can't get out of my head, what I wish I didn't have to tell you about, is what else I found at the campsite. Skin. Torn chunks of flesh. Something tells me they're not from any animal. And they have these strange symbols carved into them, the same symbols that are on some of the pages. I see them every time I close my eyes. I don't know what I should have done with them, if I should have taken them as evidence or something. All I could bring myself to do was take a picture. I'm sorry to ask this of you, but I need you to look at it for me. I can't. Whatever it is, it must be important. The photo's in your folder. If you can believe it, there's even more bad news in there.

Maybe if you can find out what happened, that might give me some sort of trail. I think decoding these symbols and finding out what the flesh says is the best place to start. Once you find out what's written on those pieces, let me know through the chat box on SuperNeutralPodcast.com. The new password is CHAMP.

Thank you for doing this for me.

Ed