OUR MISSION

Since its founding in 2018, the Three Kings Ball has served to harness the power of Carnival by providing a platform for members of all krewes to do good in the community at large.

The beneficiary of our fundraising is NOLA KidsArt, a coalition of creatives who provide mentorship, inspiration, and a safe space for young artists across the Metro New Orleans area.

MYSTIC KREWE OF MARIE LAVEAU

Founded by three young artists living in the Bywater, the Mystic Krewe of Marie Laveau began as a walking krewe with a one-dollar membership fee. Quickly amassing members, street cred, and a rolling krewe permit, this dynamic, women-led krewe has quickly become a doorway into Carnival culture for a whole new generation.

Under the leadership of artist Celestine Broussard, the MKML channels its voodoo queen namesake to celebrate strong female symbols rooted in New Orleans' multi-ethnic historical, cultural, and spiritual traditions.

KREWE OF VERSAILLES

In existence nearly as long as Carnival itself, the Krewe of Versailles was founded in 1884 to recreate the opulence of the masked aristocratic balls of old Europe. Since its earliest days, Versailles has been hand-in-glove with Carnival culture, participating in some of the earliest rolling parades.

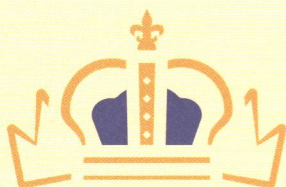

With decades of stewardship under Cyril Fortier (whose father and grandfather also served as Versailles captains), this Krewe truly shows how the best things in life — and at Carnival — were built to last.

KREWE D'ULYSSE

With a reputation as boundary-pushers in their costumes and showmanship, the relatively young Krewe d'Ulysse channels the heroic iconography of Greek myths into contemporary Carnival. Founded by married Broadway stars Jeremy and Dennis Bacon, this safe and inclusive space for queer revelry has become a pillar in the national LGBTQIA+ landscape.

Current krewe captain Jeremy Bacon is an award-winning performer and choreographer whose media savvy quickly earned his krewe international fame. Jeremy has declared this year to be his last as captain and intends to pass along his scepter and crown to "a younger hero" to be named at this year's parade.

Captain

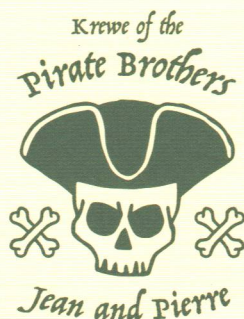

KREWE OF THE PIRATE BROTHERS JEAN AND PIERRE

Inspired by the quasi-historical records of the Pirate Brothers Lafitte, this krewe was founded by Atchafalaya State students and identical twins Dillon and Mason Morales. Citing the pirate credo of "ready for action," their krewe has proved controversial, especially with regards to city ordinances. However, they remain extremely popular with younger revelers.

The Morales brothers have publicly proclaimed that this krewe is theirs and theirs alone, and that "no other pirate shall be captain after them." As such, it's safe to assume we'll follow these two for many decades before their krewe is laid to rest.

Co-Captains

TOUS LES BOUFFONS

After a number of circuses closed during the economic crisis in 2008, a community of clowns and mimes in New Orleans banded together to form their own krewe, whose year-long clowning practices are elevated to their peak during Mardi Gras. With Bouffons distributed across Southern Louisiana, the organization boasts nearly three times the membership of most krewes.

Captain of the Bouffons is "Monsieur Zeppo La-La-La." Monsieur Zeppo was elected krewe captain after a tragic stage cannon mishap occurred in 2015 during parade rehearsals. His civilian identity remains unknown to this day, despite the public's best efforts. The krewe's official position is that Monsieur Zeppo exists only as "a Carnival spirit channeled through ritual." Many have tried to guess his identity, but none have (yet) succeeded!

THAT DOGGONE KREWE OF SIR BARKSALOT

The most prominent of “canine krewes” in the Carnival community in recent years, That Doggone Krewe of Sir Barksalot began as a Mardi Gras costume contest to raise funds for the non-profit dog rescue A Hound in Need Is a Friend Indeed. Eventually transforming into one of the largest krewes in town, Sir Barksalot's paw-print on New Orleans seems to grow each and every year.

The leader of That Doggone Krewe is Nonah Turner, who moved with then-husband Dave to the Marigny from Houma to start the first chapter of A Hound in Need. Taken with the joie-de-vivre of Carnival, Nonah soon found a way to share the Mardi Gras magic with four and two-legged residents alike, creating one of the city's most beloved krewes in the process.

KREWE OF RESPLENDENT VAGABONDS

The oldest "longshoreman krewe" in Carnival history, the Resplendent Vagabonds has always been a place for the hard-working to blow off some steam and pass a good time. Founded in 1892 by Harlan "Bucky" Moynihan to serve those who journeyed to New Orleans seeking employment at the port, this krewe continues to offer free membership to card-holding union longshoremen. However, all who value a hard day's work and a cold beer are welcome.

Krewe captain since 1989, William "Gator Bill" Pershing continues to work by day as Union Liaison for the Xing Hua Lau Shipping Co. A native of Evangeline Parish, William couldn't shake his nickname after co-workers discovered posters from the 1950s of his gator-wrestling career as a young man. Now in his eighties, William devoutly refuses to retire from the port, from his Carnival duties, or from any other aspect of life.
