Business from the Previous Meeting

Parade Theme:

The theme for the upcoming year's parade was finalized after debating between the three competing suggestions: the Pax Romana, America 3030, and World's Fair. After being put to a vote, the Pax Romana was chosen by a majority of members.

Yearly Dues Increase:

Due to the rising cost of float construction and maintenance, a fifteen percent (15%) increase in yearly dues was proposed. The proposal was approved unanimously, and will be implemented in the next round of contributions.

New Business

State Inquiry:

It has come to the attention of the Krewe that the State of Louisiana's office of the Attorney General is conducting an investigation into alleged discriminatory membership policies amongst New Orleans krewes in violation of the 1992 city ordinance, with the Krewe of Versailles named specifically.

Members proposed a variety of solutions and approaches to the State's inquiry. Put forth were: a diversity initiative culminating in an emergency assembly to nominate and draft five new members; re-incorporation of the Krewe under a new name and charter; launching a preemptive lawsuit against the State for violation of the Fourth Amendment; the creation of a lower-tier of membership which is to be more open and accessible to the public; and coordinating amongst member contacts to lobby the Governor. Ultimately, the Krewe Captain made clear his intentions, delivering the mandate that any current member who wishes to remain must look to the cards.

Upcoming Three Kings Ball Auction:

With the now-annual Three Kings Ball and its blind auction approaching, members proposed coordinating amongst the Krewe to prevent overbidding and needless competition. At the next meeting, members who intend on participating must come with a list of their top three auction items and their highest bids for each. Krewe Captain has already laid claim to the bottle of violet absinthe and advises all members to not include it in their list.
