

Investigator,

My name is Harriett Gillard. I understand that our friend Edward Barrett told you about me. I'm writing because I have reason to believe something terrible has happened to him. I found Edward's backpack in my yard, which juts right up against the very woods he vanished into. The woods I can hear whispering at night. The woods I can hear attempting to lure me with my husband's voice. I fear that it may soon start whispering to me in Edward's.

I tried to find out what happened, but there's a horrid, evil energy attached to Edward's things. That's the only way to explain it. I attempted to transcribe a tape of his I managed to play, but by the time I was finished, I felt so overwhelmed I could do no more. The rest of the materials I found inside his backpack. Horrible possibilities flitted through my mind as I tried to imagine where this came from, and what happened. These documents must tell Edward's story, but I simply cannot get through them. It seems to be inviting disaster. You've been helping him so far, so perhaps you can help with this. But I hope you have a strong stomach, considering what else is inside.

I tried my best to try to curb Edward's insistence on meddaling, and then to arm him against the woods when I saw he would not be deterred. He claimed he understood what we have here in Burkittsville, that he knew how dangerous this place is. And yet he persisted with his investigation. I've lived here all my life, and I've seen what happens when people, especially outsiders, don't take our woods seriously. I fear it is happening again.

I was able to discern one clue that may help you on your journey. After I found Edward's backpack, I attempted to track him down myself. I went to the motel, I called his telephone, and when I eventually ran out of options, I tried his website address. There's something there, a video I'm not quite sure how to unlock. If you can, maybe you can find out what happened, and why his things ended up with me.

His website is SuperNeutralPodcast.com. I found the password, CHUCHUNYA, among Edward's papers.

Go. Find out what happened. And stay safe. I don't want the woods to get you too. They have a way of affecting those who pry, even from afar.
