I'm resigning from your training...

To Marcus Lourdes marcuslourdes@vumail.io

Coach Lourdes,

I can't tell you how many times I've drafted and redrafted this email, and I could probably keep rewriting it forever if I let myself. But the whole point of all of this is that I can't afford to waste more time than I already have, no matter how much it hurts me to have to move forward like this.

You won't take my training in the direction I want to take it. I get it, but I'm never, ever, ever going to give up on this dream. I need to be the first skater in ASA history to land the quad axel in competition. I need to make history. You know it's all I've ever wanted, right?

So, I asked Coach LaPalma to work with me on the quad. Starting Monday, I'll be training with him and Harrison Campbell.

There are no words that can truly express how grateful I am for the time you've invested in me throughout the past eleven years. I literally owe my career to you. So thank you. I really hope you understand.

See you on the ice,
Lillian

To me

Lillian,

I am disappointed in you. Why don't you trust me to have your best interests at heart? Have I ever led you astray? I don't know what I did to deserve this betrayal.

There is a difference between ambition and foolishness. I aim to foster the former and only the former, but evidently you have failed to absorb the distinction. For the thousandth time, the quadruple axel is an impossible jump to execute. It's not a question of skill, Lillian. It's a matter of physics.

If you manage to give yourself a serious injury throwing yourself at this idiotic pipe dream, your career will be far shorter than if you thought realistically and played to your strengths. LaPalma is irresponsible to be encouraging you like this and too self-absorbed to realize he is ruining your career.

LaPalma will fail you. He can't see and correct your every flaw like I can. He will laugh as you flounder out there but call it "good work."

Not to mention the implication this has on your future sponsorships. Perhaps you've begun to take my connections for granted.

I anticipate you will see the error of your ways very soon. If you apologize politely when that happens, I may consider working with you again.

Sincerely,
Marcus

Coach Lourdes,

You can't talk down to me like that and you can't tell me what I can't do. It's not your job and it never will be again. I tried to be as polite as possible and you insult me and basically call me dumb and make weird vague threats about my career???

You're going to be waiting on my "apology" for a suuuuper long time. I bet you're just jealous of Coach LaPalma. Have a nice life.

-Lillian

PS - Very mature to anonymously call me "a cross-eyed pigeon with two lopsided left feet" in my Birdlr direct messages like that, Mr. "inredge_lord".

To me

Lillian,

Understood.

For the record, I didn't write that comment.

I handle conflicts face to face.
